Bloodhounds, like people, are individuals. When a bloodhound is available for relocation, Pacific Rim Bloodhound Rescue has tried to observe and/or evaluate the dog so that we can give you as much information about its personality and habits as possible. Please assist us by answering the following questions about yourself and what you expect from a bloodhound.

How did you hear about us? _____

What are your reasons for adopting a bloodhound? _____

Who is living in your house? (Please include the relationship, gender and age of each person.) _____

Who will have the major responsibility for caring for your bloodhound? Is this person home all day?

Where will your bloodhound spend most of its time? _____

Do you have a fenced area suitable for a bloodhound? Please describe: _____

Have you previously owned a bloodhound? If so, what happened to your last bloodhound? _____

What pets have you previously owned? _____

Did any cats or dogs owned by you produce a litter? _____

What pets currently reside with you? (Please include type, sex, age, spayed/neutered) _____

How will you exercise the dog? _____

Would you obedience train the dog? _____

Would you train it for tracking or trailing? _____

Please list the name of the veterinarian/animal hospital that will be taking care of the dog. (please include phone number) _____

Age Preference: _____ Sex Preference: _____ Color Preference: _____

Please list the name, address and telephone numbers of 3 references not related to you:

I/we understand that it is the policy of Pacific Rim Bloodhound Rescue to periodically pay follow-up inspection visits and if, at any time, there seems to be a problem relating to the care, health and well being of the dog, it will be removed. I/we understand that the dog will be returned to me/us only if and when such problem is corrected to the reasonable satisfaction of Pacific Rim Bloodhound Rescue.

Adoptive families are not selected on a first come first serve basis. PRBR tries to choose the most compatible environment for its bloodhounds. PRBR reserves the right to refuse adoptions to any applicant.

The undersigned understands and agrees to be bound by the statements made above. (In case of a couple seeking adoption, both must sign.)
